Inner Landscapes Sculpture Exhibition by Timboel Art Gallery

Within “Inner Landscapes”, the human body is understood not only as a physical form, but as a vessel of inner experience. Every pose, texture, distortion, and gesture within these works carries layers of meaning that speak to emotional states such as alienation, silence, searching, tension, release, and acceptance.

A work like Alone Woman may be read as a representation of solitude—not necessarily as loss, but as a space for self-recognition and introspection. Angel Hold Face suggests the tension between tenderness and emotional burden, between hope and vulnerability. Mummy evokes ideas of restraint, protection, and the traces of emotional wounds wrapped around identity and the body. Meanwhile, the abstract works within the collection extend the narrative into a more intuitive realm—representing emotions that may not yet have a clear shape, yet are deeply felt.

In this way, each work in the exhibition can be understood as a psychological portrait, a visual form of the emotional terrain that lives within every human being. The exhibition does not seek to offer definitive answers, but rather to open a contemplative space where viewers may encounter their own personal resonance.

Timboel Art Gallery

A Space for Artistic Exploration

Timboel Art Gallery stands as a space of exploration in decorative art—a place where ideas, materials, and craftsmanship unite to create meaning. We work hand in hand with the local community, not only to create, but to build an inclusive and sustainable art ecosystem. From the hands of dedicated artisans are born artworks that beautify spaces and tell stories in every corner. Timboel Art Gallery is the embodiment of art that is grounded, empowering, and inspiring.

Reviving Old Stories

By upcycling leftover wood from furniture production and remelted aluminum, we create artworks that honor the environment. Every material we use carries an old story, and our purpose is to give it a new narrative. This process is not merely about selecting raw materials— it is our commitment to sustainability, to the earth, and to the future. Rooted in simplicity and utility, we craft artworks that touch the soul and carry deep meaning.

A meaningful creation, born from human hands.

Carefully assembled by skilled artisans, each of our works emerges from dedication and patience. Not merely the outcome of machines, but the true expression of human craftsmanship. It is more than a product—it is a manifestation of love for the artistic and artisanal process. Within every stroke lies patience, and within every detail rests pride. This is the embodiment of perseverance, mastery, and a sense of belonging. This is craftsmanship—a living heritage present in every piece we create with joy.
